IF THESE WALLS COULD TALK:
UNCOVERING THE HISTORY OF YOUR HOME

Every house has a unique story. Historians Elizabeth Jacox and Barbara Perry Bauer of TAG Historical Research and Consulting present techniques and resources to help you discover the history of your home and neighborhood. Elizabeth and Barbara specialize in local and regional history and have documented the history of hundreds of homes throughout the region.

IT'S WHAT'S ON THE OUTSIDE THAT COUNTS: EXTERIOR MAINTENANCE

Fred Walters, historical architect and consultant, provides information on maintaining the exterior materials of your historic home. Consider your options and identify where to put your money, time, and effort related to common upkeep issues such as roofing, siding, insulation, stone, and mortar repointing, managing water and yard irrigation, and more.

SEEING IT THROUGH: MAINTAINING & UPDATING HISTORIC WINDOWS

Ray Westmoreland, from Wood Windows, Inc., presents hands-on exercises for preserving and updating historic windows and maximizing energy efficiency. Ray will address basic window improvements, such as sash and window jamb repair and weather-stripping; he will also discuss safety precautions for working with remnants of lead paint. Don Watts of the Idaho State Historic Preservation Office (Idaho State Historical Society) provides context by outlining preservation principles and offering suggestions for salvaging original historic materials.

Also join us for a Fettuccine Forum panel presentation on
May 3, 2012 - 5:30pm, Rose Room.
Moderator Amy Pence-Brown leads the discussion on:

"What the Heck is HPC?
Learning, Living, and Loving
Boise's Historic Districts."
